Colour Plate 55

Plate 55 Archaeology  Mummified human remains. Recent developments in instrumental chromatographic techniques have enabled trace amounts of organic residues to be detected. Examples of organic residues include the balms in the wrappings of mummified bodies and traces of colouring dyes impregnated in ancient textiles. (Reproduced with permission from Frank Spooner Pictures.)