A knowledge of the composition of the materials used by artists, derived in part using analytical methods based on separation science, enables restoration to be undertaken with confidence. (Reproduced with permission from Frank Spooner Pictures.)